First Down with Fr. Eric

Dear Friends,

The season of Lent begins with Ash Wednesday on February 22. Many people make an effort to receive ashes, and we will be ready to meet our parishioners and guests. Here is the schedule for Ash Wednesday and every service will have ashes distributed. The Mass for that day will be at 8:00 am.

Scriptures/Prayers/Ashes will be at 6:30 am, 10:00 am, 12:05 pm (live streamed and on demand afterwards), 4:15 pm and 6:00 pm. These services last about a half hour. Our Ministry of Care ministers will be ready to take the ashes to the places we minister. We will have more information, but wanted to share with you beforehand.

NEXT SUNDAY IS A HOLY DAY AT ST. PATRICK...IT'S SUPER BOWL SUNDAY! Just a reminder that the last Mass of the day will be at 12:30 pm. We move the 5:00 pm Mass just for that day as the attendance is much better earlier. People will be at parties or shopping if they don't watch the Super Bowl.

It will be a busy week in the Valley with the Phoenix Open and Super Bowl here in Glendale. Please be careful and be safe.

Peace in Christ,

Fr. Eric

Dear Friends in Christ,

On October 17 I was scheduled for my back and neck surgery. I was so grateful for your anointing prayers that Sunday and in the days beyond. Unfortunately, my surgery was cancelled due to a possible heart issue. This proved to be unfounded.

I was re-scheduled for surgery on December 21. That surgery also did not take place. My orthopedic surgeon wanted a neurosurgeon to be part of the operating based on my past surgical history.

I am now scheduled for surgery on February 17 with both surgeons participating. My pain has gotten worse, though I have been prescribed pain meds to alleviate some of the pain.

I ask you to continue to keep me in your prayers. I hope I will be able to re-join our praying community by the Triduum and during Easter time. - Dcn. Joe Herrera

Social Justice

The observation of Black History Month dates back to 1915, when Carter G. Woodson, now known as the 'Father of Black History,' created an organization called the Association for the Study of Negro Life and History. In 1926, Woodson initiated the first Negro History Week in February. Woodson chose February specifically because it covered the birthdays of Frederick Douglass (February 14) and Abraham Lincoln (February 12).

Who was Carter G. Woodson? He was from a poor family. Woodson supported himself by working in the coal mines of Kentucky and was thus unable to enroll in high school until he was 20. After graduating in less than two years, he taught high school, wrote articles, studied at home and abroad, and received his Ph.D. from Harvard University (1912). In 1915 he founded the Association for the Study of Negro Life and History to encourage scholars to engage in the intensive study of the black past.

Woodson was dean of the College of Liberal Arts and head of the graduate faculty at Howard University, Washington, D.C. (1919–20), and dean at West Virginia State College, Institute, W. Va. (1920–22). While there, he founded and became president of Associated Publishers to bring out books on black life and culture, since experience had shown him that the usual publishing outlets were rarely interested in scholarly works on blacks. He never married and had no children.

"What we need is not a history of selected races or nations, but the history of the world void of national bias, race hate, and religious prejudice."

— Carter G. Woodson (Dec. 19, 1875 - April 3, 1950)

A Visit to a Japanese Church....with Nic Cortez

Against all odds and despite the fact that liturgy never stops, I was thankfully able to go on vacation at the beginning of the new year. My trip was to Japan, which I've sorely been wanting to revisit since I studied abroad in Hiroshima in 2017 for 5 ½ weeks.

For Sunday Mass, I was able to find and attend Kurashiki Catholic Church while I was in the city of Kurashiki in Okayama Prefecture. Masses there are offered in Japanese, Portuguese, and English. In order to practice my Japanese (which admittedly has gotten a bit rusty over the years), I attended the 9:30 am Mass in Japanese. This would be my second time at a Mass in Japan, as I have attended Mass in Japanese at Assumption of Mary Cathedral in Hiroshima City in 2017.

The church building was rectangular, with a narrow narthex leading up to an old-fashioned rectangular main church with a high ceiling. It was fairly small, seating no more than 150 people in cushioned, wooden, 3-person pews with no kneelers, as there's no practice of kneeling during Mass in Japan as we are used to in the United States. When I arrived, they were just beginning the procession. I grabbed two worship aids, one with the Japanese text of that day's Mass, and the other with English text, and I slid into a pew in the back row.

Here's what I observed about the Mass that was interesting. First of all, the Mass structure was identical! It's truly amazing that the Roman Catholic Mass is done the same way all around the world. Because of this, I knew exactly what was going on, even with the language barrier. The community seemed to be made up of many Japanese, but also several Westerners and other Asian Catholics. I could follow along in the Japanese worship aid with some of the melodies played by the organist and a three-person choir. The priest was an African missionary named Fr. Raymond from the Congo. I noticed when I went to Mass in Hiroshima, the priest there was Italian, so I wonder if it might be rare to find Catholic priests who are Japanese. Fr. Raymond spoke Japanese well, including his homily, during which he occasionally also said a few words in English.

Other notes: nobody holds hands during the "Our Father;" during the sign of peace, everyone bows to the priest, then to each other, but no handshaking; and there was no genuflecting at any time by the assembly. Each difference reminded me that some practices that we assume are law are actually cultural and quite unknown elsewhere around the world.

The parishioners of this community were so kind and treated hospitality and community-building as earnestly as our community does. Just after I sat down at the start of Mass, a Japanese man approached me and handed me a booklet that had the parts of the Mass in four styles: traditional Japanese, Romanized Japanese, Vietnamese, and English. Near the end of the Mass, the priest called forward anyone who was visiting for the first time. This, of course, included me, but I didn't really understand what was happening at first. Finally someone came up to get me and bring me forward, and in front of the whole church, I was invited to introduce myself. (Thank God I remembered enough Japanese to at least give a simple introduction!) Everyone clapped for me and welcomed me warmly.

After Mass, several parishioners came up to talk to me and ask how my time in Japan was.. some even gave me candies! Fr. Raymond invited me to join the parish's online English community through Facebook, which I did. Even as I walked away from the church, a parishioner who was biking by stopped, welcomed me, and gave me a whole bag of candies. It was such a meaningful experience to be made to feel welcome and like I belonged when I was in the position of the stranger. It emphasized for me that there are always people who feel like outsiders, and our hospitality really can help break through that towards belonging. I was grateful for my time in Japan, and I hope to have many more experiences such as this!
